Only sixty guests were present at the wedding, which was celebrated very quietly, and Miss Arline Rice, of New York, presided at the piano. The bride was unattended except for little Miss Ruth Brookover, her niece, who acted as ring-bearer.

The bride's gown was fashioned of soft white satin, and made an overall dress of white marquisette. Her veil was arranged with lilacs of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Mr. Swift gave his daughter away.

A dinner followed the ceremony in the home of the bride, after which Mr. and Mrs. Boykin left for a trip to New York and Washington, later coming South for several weeks. ## AMUSEMENTS

Academy—"Madame Sherry."

Bliss—"The House Next Door," matinee and night.

"The Red Rose."

With unusually pretty music, many clever and amusing lines and a wonderfully good company, both cast and chorus, "The Red Rose" bloomed at the Academy of Music twice yesterday. The piece itself is rather a vaudeville than a musical comedy, as it is billed, and in the hands of other than very competent people it would be something less than entertaining. But John C. Fisher has provided a most elaborate setting, more fresh, clean, pretty and more than I can recall having seen in many a day, an excellent musical director, and a cast of a very high order of excellence, together with a chorus that seems to enjoy itself—both men and women—which adds immensely to the pleasure of the house.

Zoe Barnett, who sings the part of Lola, not only sings it, but plays it. She is one of the few real actors that we have seen in this kind of comedy. Grace Ellisworth, as Mme. Joyant, divides honors with the star, giving a genuinely artistic and clever performance. Menotti Frascaia sang the role of Andre with a voice and method of singing that one expects to hear only in opera of a high character—truly an operatic tenor. Sidney Broughton played Dick Lorimer, opposite Miss Barnett, in a thoroughly manly and satisfactory manner, while Sydney de Grey, as his father, made one of the hits of the performance. Joseph W. Standish "put over" a seemingly funny German part, and Wallace Beery played the straight role of Leblanc with ease and intelligence. The other name parts were well done, but these stood out.

The whole production is heavy, undoubtedly expensive, and very elaborate, and one regrets that the management saw fit to make only a one-night stand of us.

"Madame Sherry."

No musical comedy presented in New York in years has received such boundless praise from the press as came the way of "Madame Sherry." The New York World has this to say: "It is easily the brightest and most diverting musical production New York has seen in many a day, or is likely to be."

GLASGOW LETTERS READ BY JONES

Tells of His Work for First District and Criticizes

Martin.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Fredericksburg, Va., September 6.—Congressman W. A. Jones spoke to a large audience here to-night. He was introduced by Judge A. W. Wallace, who in a brief speech eulogized the Congressman as a statesman and spoke of the work he had done for his district. Throughout his speech Mr. Jones was frequently interrupted by hearty applause. He reviewed his work in Congress for the First District and reminded his audience of appropriations he had secured from Congress for the improvement of the Rappahannock River here, for the Mercer monument, for a public building and other purposes. He then read Glasgow letters and replied to Congressman Flood's explanation of them, made here last week.

Mr. Jones declared he had voted as every bill before Congress during the extra session, and stated that Mr. Martin had missed four important votes during that time. He criticized the language used by Senator Martin in his speech in Richmond, in which he used the term "malicious liar" so often.

The Congressman stated that the only way in which he could see how Senator Martin could win by the 25,000 claimed was that the same men who stole the election when he ran before were still living. He believed the great reform was in the hands of the States would sweep over Virginia.

Mr. Jones stated that the key to his office in Washington was stolen, his office in Richmond was broken into and searched, and two attempts were made to burglarize his residence in Washington.

During the evening Judge Wallace presented to Congressman Jones on behalf of the women, a number of whom were present, a floral design in appreciation of his service in Congress.

RECALL MOVEMENT IS STARTED AGAIN

Effort Being Made to Crystallize Discontented Elements in Wilmington.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Wilmington, N. C., September 6.—Petitions are being circulated to-day looking to the recall of Wilmington's councilmen, who form the city's first government by commission administration. It is not felt that the petitions will be successful. The petitions come as the result of a wild meeting held last night, at which the committee appointed to see the Council relative to rescinding certain sanitary ordinances could not make a satisfactory report, the Council standing party. The meeting, which was largely attended, became rabid, and many epithets were applied to the city administration. Conservative leaders tried to hold the meeting in check, but a number of young men, including John S. Ramos, formerly of Richmond, who was defeated for Council, got the meeting to pass a resolution for a recall. To-day these petitions are being circulated, and an effort is being made to crystallize all discontented elements, including the liquor men. Leading business men have come out strong against the recall movement.
